Lord Cunliffe has been associated with the Bank of England since 1895 and during the present war has won great regard in England because of his ability shown in financing the British part in the war. In recognition of these services he was raised to the peerage in the earlier stages of the conflict.

Sir Eric Drummond is half-brother and heir presumptive to the Earl of Perth and married the Hon. Angela Constable-Maxwell, sister of the Duchess of Norfolk.

Maj. Gen. Bridges has had a distinguished career in the British army and until recently was head of the military mission with the Belgian army in the field.

Rear Admiral De Chair was formerly British naval attaché at Washington and has been admiral in command of the British naval training services.

Capt. H. H. Spender-Clay married Pauline Astor, daughter of Baron Astor, and has been active in parliamentary circles since the start of the war.

Ian Malcolm was born in Quebec, but has spent much of his life in Great Britain. He is the husband of the daughter of Lilly Langtry (Lady de Bathe) and has taken an active part in the civilian prosecution of the war.

HOUSE TRYING TO DODGE ISSUE

Would Put Conscription on President Wilson's Shoulders

THE PRESIDENT WILL FIGHT

Favorable Vote Is Expected in the Senate Soon

Washington, April 20.—With the stage all set for a bitter struggle between the advocates and opponents of conscription, Chairman Dent of the House committee on military affairs submitted to the House yesterday the committee's substitute for the administration's selective conscription bill.

President Wilson, according to his closest advisers, is determined not to accept the substitute, and is prepared, it is said, to appeal to the people of the country to stand with him for what he regards as an absolute essential to the safety of the nation.

While the substitute does not prevent the president from resorting to the selective conscription principles, it provides that conscription shall be used only in the event that the president decides that the force needed cannot be raised under the volunteer plan.

In other words, the committee's measure seeks to give to Congress a means of dodging responsibility for conscription, which, in the opinion of some of the politicians of the House, would prove unpopular.

Besides the substitute bill, which will bear the indorsement of twelve of the twenty members of the committee who voted on the proposition Wednesday, there will be a minority report submitted standing squarely behind the administration bill.

The bill which will be taken up Monday, provides, in the conscription feature, that all physically able males between 21 and 40 years are eligible.

Under an agreement reached yesterday afternoon by Representatives Kitchen, Mann, Dent and Kahn, there will be eighteen hours of general debate with further debate under the five minute rule.

While this preliminary action occurred in the House, Senator McCumber introduced in the Senate an amendment to the administration measure proposing to raise the army needed by calling for volunteers proportionately from each voting district; a resort to conscription is made possible only after the volunteer plan fails.

The Senate may reach a vote on its bill which is only slightly changed from the one the president wants, before tonight and the administration feels no doubt as to its passage in the upper House.

Officers of the army general staff are unsparing in their criticism of the substitute bill of the House committee, which, in their opinion, will perpetuate all the weaknesses of the volunteer system.

Even in the event that the president would resort to conscription under the committee's bill, conscripts would be given opportunity for appeals to the courts, and the effort is made to handicap the war department by various restrictions as to the selection of officers and the grouping of men.

While respecting the individual viewpoints of those who oppose conscription, President Wilson is understood to feel that this is not an opportune time for prolonged discussion of details when it is vitally essential to the welfare of the nation to raise an army at once.

With completion of work on the army bill in sight, the emergency war program is nearing its end and Congress is again talking adjournment. Many believe now that the session can be ended by June 1. Leaders of both parties are sounding out members as to opinion on this.

The administration bill to raise the enlisted strength of the navy to 150,000 men was ordered favorably reported by the Senate naval affairs committee yesterday afternoon.

The House yesterday passed the administration bill raising the eligible age limit for officers of the naval reserve from 35 to 50 years in order to get into the service many merchant ship officers. The House also passed a bill to increase the number of naval officers in the hydrographic office.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headache, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

General Sporting Notes.

Fabrique is another one of those versatile young men who bat left-handed against right-hand pitchers, and right-handed against left-handers. Seldom does a man who changes in this way ever climb to the coveted 300 mark.

Olsen is playing great ball for the Robins and looks to be a real champion, but it is a long stretch to the end of the 1917.

Benny Kauff is busy laying the foundation of a .300 batting average. Kauff has been making a few nice hits in the early games.

Manager Joe Tinker of the Columbus American association team is well pleased with the work of his young pitching find, Earhardt, who recently joined the club.

The Boston Braves are an example of the changes in baseball. There is not a player with the club now who played with the team in 1910. Tyler is the veteran of the club and Hank Gowdy is the next oldest member of the organization, he joining the team in 1911, but was farmed to the minors for a while, being recalled later.

Alex McLean hasn't heard anything yet from Johnny Munlee concerning a return bout between Joe Connolly and George Alger. McLean says he is now ready to give Frankie Mack a match for the welterweight championship of New England.

Tufts made the New York City college look cheap Wednesday, when they walloped the New Yorkers by a score of 18 to 1.

Ferdinand Schupp, the young southpaw on the Giants' roster, is easily the best left-hander in the National league. In his initial appearance against the Robins the other day, he showed great skill in his ability to whitewash his opponents by a score of 5 to 0. In other words, Schupp resumed work where he left off last fall. He completely dazzled the Robins by a fast shoot over the corners of the plate, mixed with a beautifully wide-sweeping curve which they failed to connect with effectively. Only five hits were secured off his delivery, two of these being of the very scratchy variety.

Schupp has a wonderful arm and probably has the best control of any pitcher in the game. He has a surplus amount of confidence and appears to be the pitching find of recent years. McGraw says he looks better than Marquard did when he won his 19 straight in 1912.

"Knuckle Ball" Cicotte of the White Sox and former Red Sox pitched himself to a record in his initial appearance of the season by holding his opponents scoreless as well as hitless. A first never performed as early in the season before.

Howard Drew is certainly a come-back. The other night he held Andy Kelly to a dead heat, only to be beaten by inches in 10 1-5 seconds time. It was but a few weeks ago that Drew's left thigh measured two inches less than the right, caused by the spinal trouble which he had after his breakdown last August.

If the Red Sox can win this year's pennant, the team will make a world's record, as no other team has even accomplished the feat before. The manage-

What Are the Styles in Men's Clothes for Spring

Here's the authentic news; you can be sure it's correct when we tell you it's about the Hart Schaffner & Marx spring clothes that have just arrived. They're always right in style, fit, quality, and workmanship; the fabrics are all-wool.

You'll Find Some Interesting Things Here

Varsity Fifty Five designs will be style leaders in young men's suits. The coats are a little fuller and more loosely draped. Belt-back variations of Varsity Five are strong favorites this spring and summer. Hart Schaffner & Marx have produced some smart new features. Some have the belt all around; others are double breasted; many belt and plait arrangements. The most distinctive variations you see are here at this store.

Varsity Six Hundred is the overcoat hit for spring. Some of the models are body tracing; others are loosely draped; some have a belt all around, an echo from the front; others have simply a plain belt back. Any number of variations of this fundamental style.

There is a variety of other interesting things—but you have to see them to appreciate them. Come in and we'll go over all the new things together; we won't try to sell you a thing.

ment-claims that one thing which would hold this team down is over-confidence on the part of the players.
Vic Sailer of the Cubs will be sadly missed at such an early stage of the game, although it would not jar the team's pennant hopes as bad as it would record, as no other team has even accomplished the feat before. The manage-part of the year and it may be the means of showing up another star diamond performer.

James C. Dunn of the Cleveland Indians has invested $100,000 in new players since he took over the club a year ago. Dunn appears to be a man who will build up the team at any price. William J. McNulty, manager of Eddie Kelly of New York, writes that he will match his protegee against any lightweight in New England.

Manager Callahan of the Pirates has had hard luck in the first week of the season, but he has a young team and is living in hopes that after the youngsters get worked into the fray the club will pick up.
